

Honors For Veterans - 2017

National Association of University Women
Southwest Section

17th Sectional Conference

February 4th, 2017

Overview

- Since the United States of America was created, our Armed Services have performed far beyond the Call of Duty to protect our honor as a country and our democratic goals and way of life.
- Since World War II, formal celebration and honors of the veterans of the U.S. Armed Services branches: Army, Navy, Marines, Air Force, Coast Guard, and National Guard, have been considered a National Holiday.

Today's Service

- We of the members of the National Association of University Women celebrate and honor our veterans.
- We join together to offer our sincere gratitude for our veterans' service to our country.
- In this way we hope to teach our younger generations of what is commitment and the concept of service without personal expectation of rewards.

Service to Community and Country

- In this spirit, through the celebration and honors of today, and from memories from 2017, we continue our special day.
